Claims 1-33 are pending in this application which should be reviewed for errors. In response to the restriction requirement, applicants elected with traverse the invention of Group V, claim 5. Claims 1-4 and 6-33 are withdrawn from consideration as being drawn to non-elected inventions. Applicants are requested to send the Cleary et al., Kaye et al., and McGrath et al. references cited on their form 1449.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Behr et al., US 5,616,745. Behr et al. disclose 5-carboxyspermylglycinedioctadecylamide.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Behr et al., US 5,616,745. Behr et al. disclose lipopolyamines of formula I to be useful as vectors for the transfection of eukaryotic cells (s. Cols. 1 and 2). N may be 1 to 5, m may be 2-6 and R may be hydrogen or a radical of formula II (s. Col. 1, line 25). R1 and R2 may be identical or different saturated or unsaturated aliphatic radicals. The anticipating compound noted above is disclosed in example 1. The teaching of Behr et al. differs from the instant invention in that, although Behr et al. discloses compounds of formula I overlapping applicants', not all of the compounds are actually exemplified. It would have been prima facie obvious at the time the invention was made to one of ordinary skill in the art to start with the teaching of Behr et al., to make additional generically disclosed compounds especially in view of the anticipating compound actually made and to expect to produce further compounds useful as transfection vectors.

No claim is allowed.
